

Particulars.

* * *

Cornelia E. Perkins Dies, Services Told

Cornelia E. Perkins, 1235 Twelfth street and a resident of Marion for the last twenty-eight years, died Friday at her home. She was born July 28, 1892 in Bielsko, Austria, and married on July 1, 1905 to Jacob Perkins. She was a member of the Lutheran Church of the Resurrection and the Cary club.

Surviving are three daughters: Mrs. J. B. Tulasiewicz, Cedar Falls; Mrs. Charles R. Bulcock of Marion and Mrs. O. L. Jones of Hiawatha and three grandchildren. Services are Monday at 10 a.m. at the Murdoch chapel in Marion. Burial in Cedar Memorial cemetery. Friends may call at the chapel after 2 p.m. Saturday.

* * *

New Jersey Visitors — Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Boydish, 717 Sixth avenue, entertained Mrs. Esther Brenneman of Mount Holly, N.J., at dinner Wednesday.

FBI Reports Violent Crime Up 6 Percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Violent crime rose 6 percent but property crime declined 2 percent during the first three months of 1973, the justice department said Friday.

The FBI's quarterly crime statistics showed that the overall number of serious crimes in the nation fell 1 percent in comparison with the same period a year ago.

But Attorney General Elliot Richardson said the small decline occurred because of a technical change in the method of compiling crime figures. Had there been no change, he said, the overall crime rate would have increased 1 percent.

Increases in violent crime categories ranged from 4 percent for robbery to 9 percent for aggravated assault. Forcible rape was up 7 percent and myself and my assistants are gone from the office three times more than other officers. So I feel I really need a deputy more than anyone."

He also stated that "all other elected county officers in Benton county are women supplying second income to a family because their salary will not support a family by itself."

He considered his request for a salary raise both for himself and his office help not at all out of line.

The Benton county conference board at a special meeting Wednesday night had voted to open up the assessor's job for other applicants at a special meeting Wednesday night.

But they said Lockard was free to reapply if he so desired. This morning Lockard said, "Under the law, I have to apply for reappointment every six years, and unless another opportunity arises within the next two to three months I will probably apply for reappointment."

Inmate Mops His Way to Freedom

His drug at ml single partin er am agenci est lev fusion. Inge job he people who br He